Growing Deeper to Bear Much Fruit

As CURE enters its next phase of organizational development, we remain committed to the vision and ideals around which this organization was formed:

- Bringing healing to children with correctable disabilities through medical intervention;
- Ministering to the spiritual needs of these children and families that have been labeled as “cursed” or otherwise ostracized due to misconceptions about their condition and potential treatments; and
- Building up the national health care infrastructure of the countries we serve through the training of local medical practitioners (doctors, nurses, technicians, etc.)

With its various hospitals and programs, CURE resembles an orchard filled with many different trees, yet each has the same goal: to produce fruit for the Kingdom. Our goal in every location we serve will be to grow deeper to bear much fruit. We will continue to be intentional about using our resources to multiply the number of children and families healed by increasing capacity throughout our network.

Patient Stories

The following two stories are examples of lives that have been changed due to the care received at CURE. Each year, we hear thousands of stories just like Luz Maria's and Sharif's.

Luz Maria Dominican Republic

Since the day Luz Maria was born, there had been constant struggles for their family. Born with clubfoot, doctors failed to effectively treat her condition, leaving her mother, Ana, to wonder if help was even possible. "Before CURE, I had no hope. I felt like nothing was going to happen. She had so many surgeries, but it did nothing," Ana said.

Since Luz Maria's surgery, people can't believe the change. When they ask if it's the same little girl, Ana rejoices in telling them, "There at CURE, I found the grace of God. I found my peace, and I found my healing...Every time my daughter dances, I see the miracles of the Lord before my eyes. God bless you CURE for helping heal my daughter."

Sharif Malawi

Sharif's mother began to worry when her son didn't crawl like the other babies. As he grew, so did her concern. Sharif's legs started to bow and walking became difficult. Eventually, he was forced to walk on the side of his foot. His mother was distraught over his physical condition and also feared for his future. The other kids in the village called Sharif "worthless dog" and made up songs to taunt and tease him. She saw how other people with disabilities were ridiculed and ostracized by the community and knew it would be hard for him to get a job or even get married.

One day, Sharif's mother heard about a CURE mobile clinic nearby and took him for an evaluation. Other doctors had told her that nothing could be done for his son, so she held out little hope that this time would be different. To her great surprise, her experience at CURE was very different. She described it as a "coming home". She and Sharif were treated with love and compassion and best of all, Sharif was able to have surgery to correct his legs. Now the kids that called him names are amazed at the change. Sharif's entire family is incredibly grateful to CURE and thankful to God for the life-changing surgery Sharif received.
