

Help Others Discover CURE — Host a Gathering

Hi [First Name],

I wanted to share something new we're launching—something simple yet deeply impactful—called Discover CURE.

At its heart, Discover CURE is a chance for people to gather in homes, offices, or churches over a meal or coffee, watch a few short videos, and have meaningful conversations about what healing looks like for children with treatable disabilities in underserved regions. It's not a fundraiser, and there's no ask. It's an invitation to see the mission of CURE up close and experience the stories of transformation God makes possible for the children and families we serve.

We're looking for passionate CURE supporters like you to help us share this story of how God is at work. Would you consider hosting one of these gatherings?

Here's what being a host would involve:

- Inviting friends, aiming for a group of 8 to 12 total, to your home, office, or church (ideally people who may not know much about CURE)
- Providing a meal or refreshments—whatever feels comfortable and welcoming to you
- You'll be joined by a trained facilitator from CURE who will lead the conversation and ensure everything flows smoothly. You won't need to give a speech or teach anything—we've got that covered.
- Creating a warm atmosphere for about 90-120 minutes, where the trained facilitator will guide the group through a series of five short videos and simple, thoughtful discussion prompts

We're hoping to eventually host two to three gatherings each month in cities across the country, and we'd love for yours to be one of them.

If this sparks your interest—or even if you're just curious—I'd love to set up a quick call to tell you more.

Thank you for your ongoing support of CURE. I believe this next step could open doors for others to experience the mission that's meant so much to you and made a tangible difference in the lives of children around the world.

Warmly,
[Your Name]
